

Ricmotech Phone Cradle for Fanatec Installation Guide

Items Needed:

1. Fanatec ClubSport or CSL wheel base
2. Contents of cradle Kit
  - a. Front Bezel
  - b. Back Plate
  - c. Spacer Plate
  - d. Three sets of six spacers
  - e. Twelve #6 x 0.25" screws
  - f. Two M6 screws
  - g. Felt pads
3. #2 Phillips Screwdriver
4. 4mm Hex Wrench

Installation:

	Locate six spacers that are as tall or slightly taller than the highest point on your phone.
 Image shown is for Thrustmaster mount, Fanatec mount is similar.	The assembled cradle should look similar to this. The felt pads should only be used if there is excess gap in the slot as shown in the next step. The pads can be applied wherever needed.

If there is excess gap in the phone slot use the felt pad(s) to push the phone against the front panel. This is especially required when a camera protrudes on the back of the phone.

Place your phone in the cradle and adjust screws and spacers to locate your phone screen centered in the opening.

Mount the cradle to the wheel base with the M6 screws provided. If the screws on the back of the cradle contact the wheel base then you may use the spacer plate behind the back plate to position the cradle away from the base.

Run your favorite dashboard app on your phone and drop the phone into the cradle.

Mount your wheel and verify if the height needs adjusting to be properly viewed.

Most phones have the charging port in a position that is accessible while the phone is in the cradle.

Ricmotech is not able to provide support for any app that runs on your phone and connects to a game. We only provide the mounting cradle. There are many apps available for PC and console games and we do not endorse any of them.
